

b
UNIVERSITÄT
BERN

Hiring Research Assistant (25%)

The Institute of Sociology at the University of Bern has an immediate opening for a research assistant position with Prof. Ben Jann. The employment level is 25% and the employment is limited until the end of April 2023.

Tasks

Your task is to support a field experiment in the field of development economics in El Salvador. The project consists of two interventions that aim at reducing waste pollution in Salvadorian villages and is a joint project of the Institute of Sociology and the Department of Economics of the University of Bern. In particular, you will help with the remote management of the data collection consisting of foto measurements and surveys in 120 villages.

Requirements

- Student of the University of Bern
- Bachelor´s degree at the Faculty of Economics and Social Sciences or in a related field of study (or about to be completed)
- Good language skills in Spanish in order to communicate with the team in El Salvador (oral and written) and English (written)
- Interest in international cooperation as well as environmental issues
- Basic R skills are beneficial

We offer

Insight into a scientific project in the context of international cooperation as well as independent work in a motivated and committed team and a salary according to cantonal rates.

For further information please contact Martina Jakob (martina.jakob@unibe.ch).

Please submit your application with the usual documents (letter of motivation, CV, references) electronically until 10 March, 2023: Martina Jakob, Institute of Sociology, University of Bern, Fabrikstrasse 8, 3012 Bern, martina.jakob@unibe.ch