The Department of Economics at the University of Bern invites applications for an

Assistant Professor (tenure track) in Theoretical Microeconomics

Focus in industrial or organizational economics is an advantage but applications from all fields in theoretical microeconomics are welcome. The candidate’s main objective should be the development of a strong research record with high quality publications in top general interest and top field journals. Candidates must have a PhD in Economics or an equivalent degree completed by the starting date of the appointment.

The successful candidate is expected to contribute to the teaching of the core Microeconomics courses at the Bachelor- and Master-level and to provide advanced courses in accordance with her or his field of specialization. Teaching can be in English or German.

The Department encourages and supports the candidate in the acquisition of third-party research funding (e.g. ERC, SNF). The salary is subject to the regulations of the Canton of Bern and is internationally competitive. The University of Bern is an equal opportunity employer. Women are therefore strongly encouraged to apply.

Applications should be sent by email to microeconomics@vwi.unibe.ch and should include a CV, one job market paper, and three reference letters (to be sent separately). The review of applications will start October 15, 2020 and will continue until the position is filled. Job talks are expected to take place in November. For further information, please contact Prof. Igor Letina or Prof. Marc Möller and visit our website at www.vwi.unibe.ch.